

A MECKERING WEDDING.

LEE—ANTONY.

On Christmas day, at the Methodist Church, Meckering, the wedding of Sidney Lee and Jean Antony, both of Meckering, was solemnised by the Rev. F. F. Riley. The bride's dress was composed of soft white silk and billet lace, with fillet insertion to match, threaded with gold. The front panel of the skirt was embroidered to correspond with the bodice, and trimmed with ruffled white satin ribbon to form true lover's knot at foot. Miss Antony, the first bridesmaid, was robed in a handsome cream Togo silk costume, with lace trimmings, and she wore a pretty net blouse, finished with tiny mauve buttons and baby ribbons, and hat of silk to match, with crown of pale pink brocade and spray of wheat. Miss Lily Antony, second bridesmaid, wore a pretty frock of cream figured voile, with trimmings of soft white silk, and fancy pearl buttons, with pretty hat of pale blue satin and voile to match frock, with spray of tiny forget me-nots. The bride's mother wore a beautiful dress of black Togo silk, with trimmings of black satin, lace and sequins, with a large black hat, with black and white trimmings and lovely black ostrich plume. Mr R. Antony, brother of the bride, acted as best man.

After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served at the residence of the bride's mother (Mrs J. C. Antony), about forty relatives and friends being present. The health of the newly-married couple was proposed by Mr P. Coffey, and suitably acknowledged by Mr Lee.

The happy couple spent their honeymoon in the mountains.
